LEPROSY IN IOWA.

The Result of an Investigation-Some Authentic Cases-Is the Disease Contagious? DES MOINES, September 9.

For some time the Iowa State Board of Health the Norwegians, but no direct information could be obtained. Applications was made to Dr. Eckbrated Dr. Bogek and Dr. A. J. Holmboock, of Sweden, visited this country and traveled over the northwest, making investigation of leprosy. In their report they mention about thirty cases, giving the names of the persons and their location. Several of them were in Winneshiek county in this State. During the visit Dr. Holmboeck witnessed the death of one person from the disease in

On this information the State Board of Health further pursued its investigation, and few days ago received some definite information through the Rev. Mr. Koren, a clergyman who has been settled among the Norwegians in that section over thirty years. He mentions one Johannes Simonsen, who is from a leprous family, is now 75 years and has never had a symptom of the disease. Also, he names one Knab Ericksen, who died twenty years ago. and probably was the same person whose death was witnessed by Dr. Holmboeck. One N. N. Remme, of his congregation, died of the disease April 6, 1863. He was a horse doctor, traveled about the country, camping out, had bad food and suffered great exposure. None of his family, however, had the disease. Another case, that of Ljar Petersen. Duplicate orders shall only be issued by the

Mr. Koren is firmly of the opinion that no cases of the disease now exist in Northern Iowa or Southern Minnesota, but he may not know, as from it in 1863, lived in that country fourteen years before the disease developed itself. It was only through perfect knowledge of it and long experience with it that it was detected by Drs. Boeck | Waialua and Holmboeck. Medical authority, however, The paid orders shall remain in the possession of has declared that the disease is non-contagious. Whether or not it is hereditary is a mooted question.
